

HOW TO PREPARE FOR A JUNGLE SAFARI?

One of the most cherished experiences is to spectate wildlife in their natural habitat. When you wish to witness the wildlife, jungle safaris are one of the most famous ways to do that. Whether it's your first time or your tenth, you get to feel the same excitement in your gut as you sit in a jeep or a canter and drive through the serene nature around you. However, preparing yourself for the ride is a challenge in itself. Apart from the things you need to have with you, it is also important to not expect too much to avoid disappointments. Here are the things you need to keep in mind to be prepared:

- Always carry cash: While you feel the breeze messing up your hair, hear the birds singing, smell the fragrance of the newly blossomed flowers and see the breath-taking view in front of you; it is always better to have some cash in case of emergencies.
- Check the network availability: Although the best thing to do is to stay unplugged from the rest of the world to fully enjoy the ride. However, if you need to stay connected, contact your resort or guide and find out about network accessibility.
- Be ready to be disconnected: Being disconnected from the outside world seems a bit uneasy in the beginning, but once you hop on your ride, it's like a blessing in disguise. Away from the hustle of society and the constant ringing of phones, nature refreshes your mind and heart.
- Keep a check on the temperature: Whether you are thinking of visiting in winters or summers, you are going to witness extreme weather conditions. You can always take the help of Google for this information. Sometimes, the days are hot and the nights are cold, and you need to be prepared for both. If you are wearing light clothes for your day safari, don't forget to carry a jacket as it can get chilly at night.
- Be aware of the safari rules: Even though the rules are meant to be broken, that's not the case when it comes to safaris. You are not supposed to feed animals, be loud or get out of your vehicle at any time. Also, wearing dull colours over bright ones is advisable. There are a lot of other rules and regulations which need to be followed throughout. Since you are entering their residing place, it is your responsibility to follow the set rules.
- Go for advance booking: If you are thinking of booking a safari once you reach your destination, you are making a mistake. Safaris are quite famous among tourists and often get sold out quickly. Not sure how to book in advance? Visit Tigerwalah's website and get all the answers you are looking for.
- Pack your bags a day before: Day safaris start very early in the morning. If you start packing your bags on the same day, you can get late for your safari.
- Things to keep in your backpack: The important things to carry are your ID proof and booking confirmation. If you don't have your ID, you will not be allowed on the safari. Other essential things are water bottles, a camera, sunscreen, torch, medicines, goggles and anything else which you can think of which might come in handy during the ride.
